ARCHITECT MAKES BLIND SCHOOL'S PLANS FOR THE BUILDING

SANTA FE OFFICIALS ARE SHOWN
WHAT LAS VEGAS INTENDS TO DO

Plans for the proposed Commercial club building to be located on the Santa Fe station grounds for the purpose of exhibiting the products of this county to travelers, were finished this week by Architect E. W. Hart. The drawings have been sent to Kansas City where they will be finished in color, and later submitted to the officials of the Santa Fe Railway company for approval.

The idea of erecting such a building has been discussed several times by the Commercial club, and several weeks ago the board of directors decided to make application for space on the Santa Fe property. The request for space will be accompanied by the plans, and it is believed the railroad officials will favor the proposition.

The present plan is to have the Harvey system operate a news stand in the building, providing an attendant. The greater portion of the building will be used for the exhibiting of the products of the city and county. It is thought that this plan will meet with the approval of the railway company, as it has been planned several times to establish an outdoor news stand.

The plans for the building are most attractive. It is to be 16 by 35 feet in dimensions, and will be of gray stucco material with plate glass windows. The roof is to be tiled and the building will be fire proof and steam heated.

Exhibit space will be sold in the building to the neighboring towns of the county and by this method and the large subscription already raised for the purpose, there will be little financial difficulty in completing the structure.

CORNELL AND PENNSYLVANIA

New York, Nov. 26.—The annual gridiron battle between Pennsylvania and Cornell on Franklin Field will furnish the principal item on the Thanksgiving menu served 'up to football enthusiasts in the east. What ever showing these two teams may make during the season they seldom fail to put up a warm contest when they come together at the wind-up of their season's schedules. Despite the fact that victory has perched on the Cornell banner but once during the 20 years that she has faced Pennsylvania on the gridiron, the Ithaca team has strong hopes of winning tomorrow. In the opinion of most critics the two elevens are more evenly matched than in many years.

Other teams that will meet on eastern gridirons tomorrow are Brown and Clark at Providence, Lafayette and Dickinson at Easton, and Tufts and Boston College at Boston.

THE ALAMOGORDO INSTITUTION
SHOWS WONDERFUL HAND-
WORK OF PUPILS

Albuquerque, Nov. 26.—Probably the most interesting display in the educational exhibit at the armory this week is that from the New Mexico School for the Blind at Alamogordo. This school has been struggling along for eight or nine years with meager appropriations, insufficient equipment and other handicaps. Yet during the past few years, under its present direction it seems to have reached a high stage of efficiency.

The last legislature made a special appropriation for a new building which is now complete and which contains the girls' dormitory, kitchen and dining room, and this has relieved the congestion, although the 45 pupils now enrolled are all that can be cared for properly with the present equipment. There are many more blind children in the state who would enter the school did the capacity of the school permit.

The faculty now consists of four teachers, the superintendent, a matron for boys and a matron for girls. The most modern methods of instruction for the sightless are employed.

The exhibit at the armory this week is in charge of Miss Woodbury, teacher of music at the school, and consists of a notable display of domestic science, manual training, penmanship, basket weaving, drawing and last, but by no means least, of six magnificent loving cups and three pennants, won by the blind athletes of this school in competition with the schools of the country.

Miss Woodbury is also giving a practical demonstration of the results accomplished by the school. She has with her in the booth little 9-year-old Louise Jones, blind from birth, three years in the school and now in the sixth grade. Louise writes and reads fluently. She makes fair progress on the typewriter and is as well advanced in general education as the average child of the same age. She is an accommodating young lady and will demonstrate her conquest over her great afflictions as often as requested.

Tonight Miss Woodbury will present another demonstration of the blind school's efficiency, when little Miss Prescilla Ortiz, 12 years old, of Albuquerque, one of her pupils, will give a violin solo in Elks' theater at the closing session of the convention.

"We now have an enrollment of 45 at the school," said Miss Woodbury this morning, "and we could easily double that number if the school had room to care for them properly. There are numbers of blind children in the state who need the school and who would come if we could care for them."

"Our new building has simplified matters for the management considerably, but we are in great need of more room. I suppose this will be provided in due time."

"Our girls, in addition to general education, are taught domestic science and music. The boys are given courses in music, manual training and piano tuning. We are especially proud of our athletic record. The cups on display here have been won in successive years by our boys in open competition with the great blind schools of the country. With our little enrollment we have defeated year after year, schools with hundreds of pupils. The contests are held on our own grounds, timed and measured by competent disinterested parties and the awards made by the association. Since our team was organized it has never been defeated. We attribute this success, and our repeated victories over the big schools to the fact that our boys are in the open air practically all the time, winter and summer, while in the big schools of the eastern and central states a great part of the time must be spent indoors and exercise taken between four walls."
